Brookfield

Brookfield's Employee Engagement Groups

At Brookfield, we have a growing number of employee engagement groups, which are voluntary, employee-led groups that foster an inclusive workplace, provide volunteer opportunities and help develop future leaders.

Brookfield women's network

Brookfield Women's Network is dedicated to attracting, developing and motivating a community of women across Brookfield's various business groups. We aim to engage and inspire our full suite of female employees with various initiatives intended to support career growth and leadership development. Our areas of focus include professional development, mentorship, networking, business and industry education and philanthropy.

Brookfield cares

Brookfield Cares is Brookfield's corporate philanthropy initiative program, that aims to make a positive contribution to the communities in which we operate. The goal of our program is to use our financial and human resources to help enrich the lives of those in need within our community.

Below are some of the organizations we partner with:

- 9/11 Memorial Museum
- American Heart Association
- Big Brothers, Big Sisters
- American Cancer Society
- Friends of Hudson River Park
- The GO Project
- The Bowery Mission
- Volunteers of America – Operation Backpack
- NYC Service – Office of the Mayor

Brookfield bnext

Brookfield Next Generation (BNEXT) brings together colleagues in the early stages of their careers who want to engage with and learn from each other. The group encompasses young employees from various departments and offers support for career development and employee networking.
