Digital Infrastructure Investor of the Year, Asia-Pacific

Brookfield Asset Management

As it continued its push into the Australasian market, Brookfield made two significant moves in the digital infrastructure space in 2019. First, it acquired 100 percent of DCI Data Centers from Blackstone. DCI has wholesale data centre facilities of 10,000 square metres. Its centres typically have one to three customers over multiple data halls. Brookfield later teamed up with Morrison & Co to buy Vodafone New Zealand. The business is New Zealand's largest mobile network provider with 40 percent of market share by revenue.
