Infrastructure debt manager of the year - Europe

Brookfield Asset Management

Having reached a final close on its inaugural infrastructure debt fund in 2018 on $885 million, Brookfield turned towards raising a dedicated European vehicle. Setting out the firm's strategy in the region, Ian Simes, managing director in Brookfield's infrastructure group, said: "The senior debt space has become very competitive with debt funds, banks and the larger insurance companies and pension funds all providing capital for infrastructure debt. However, in the non-investment grade space, we see less competition and a much more modest supply of capital."
