QIA and Brookfield Announce Initiative to Invest in Germany's Critical Industries

DOHA, QATAR and Berlin, Germany – November 20, 2026 – Qatar Investment Authority (QIA) and Brookfield Corporation (NYSE: BN, TSX:BN) announced today the signing of a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) focused on the exploration of potential investments in Germany's critical industries and defense sector. The MoU is designed to encourage the parties to collaborate with respect to the identification and execution of such opportunities with the aim of investing a combined aggregate amount of EUR 15 billion.

In the current environment, Germany has identified critical industries, and particularly defense, as priority sectors for the country, emphasizing the strengthening of domestic production capacity, technological sovereignty, and resilience.

Mohammed Saif Al-Sowaidi, CEO of QIA, said: "This agreement reflects QIA's commitment to long-term investment in strategically important sectors. In partnership with Brookfield, we look forward to supporting the growth and resilience of Germany's economy."

Bruce Flatt, CEO of Brookfield, said: "We are thrilled to partner with QIA on this important initiative. Brookfield's investment and operating expertise across high-quality industrial businesses, which provide essential products and services underpinning the global economy, is ideally suited to supporting Germany's objective of building the critical production capacity required for a more resilient European industrial base."
